

The Sacred Name as Revealed

YHVH is the personal name of God and His most frequent designation, occurring over 6,800 times. This is the Ineffable Name or Unutterable Name of the God of Israel.

Because it is composed from the four Hebrew letters Yod, Hey, Vav, and Hey, it is also referred to as the "Tetragrammaton," which simply means "the four letters."

When God commissioned Moses to be Israel's liberator from the bondage of Pharaoh's Egypt, he asked for God's Name in order to validate his God-given role to the children of Israel (see Exodus 3:14). God simply answered Moses, "ehyeh-asher-ehyeh":

The phrase ehyeh asher ehyeh (rendered as "I AM THAT I AM") derives from the Qal imperfect first person form of the verb hayah: "I will be," and therefore indicates a connection between the Name YHVH and being itself.

YHVH is the Source of all being and has being inherent in Himself (i.e., He is necessary Being).

Everything else is contingent being that derives existence from Him. The name YHVH also bespeaks the utter transcendence of God.

In Himself, God is beyond all "predications" or attributes of language: He is the Source and Foundation of all possibility of utterance and thus is beyond all definite Jehovah?

On account of this, the Masoretes ensured that the Name of the LORD would not be taken in vain by substituting the vowel marks for Adonai and putting them under the letters in the running text (this is called Qere [what is to be read] as opposed to Ketiv [what is to be written]).

וַיֹּאמֶר אֱלֹהִים אֶל-מֹשֶׁה אֱהִיָּה אֲשֶׁר אֱהִיָּה

The Hebrew text, then, contains the Ketiv but uses the vowels of the Qere and this has led to the obviously incorrect pronunciation of the Name as "Jehovah" (in older English, "J" had a "y" sound). Hovah meaning in Hebrew "Ruin or Disaster"

Note the letter J or W is not found in the Hebrew

Alphabet.

Yahweh?

It was later speculated that perhaps the Masoretes reversed the vowels for Adonai when applied to the letters in the running text, so some attempted to "correct" the pronunciation by pronouncing the Name as "Yahoveh" or "Yahveh." This, too, is incorrect (though the construct form "Yah" probably is part of the original pronunciation (e.g., see Psalm 68:4; Isaiah 26:4)). Note that Yahweh is most likely also an incorrect transliteration

לֹא תִשָּׂא אֶת־שֵׁם־יְהוָה אֱלֹהֶיךָ לְשׁוֹא

This earlier form of the Name was used until Ezra the scribe converted the ancient script to Aramaic morphology (ketav meruba), which is now the form used in Torah scrolls:

YHVH and YHVH Compounds

Though we do not know how to pronounce the sacred Name, we can be confident that the letters derive from the Hebrew verb "to be" (hayah) and indicate God's utter transcendence as the Source and Ground of all being.

יהוה-יהוה-יהוה-יהוה

For each name in the list below, I provide the following information:

- The Hebrew text for the name , hayah hoveh yi'yeh, "He was, He is, He will be."

In those contexts where the actual title "Lord" (Adonai) also occurs, YHVH is translated as "GOD," (all caps):

Note: YHVH is transliterated as "Jehovah" in four passages where the name is particularly stressed (Exodus 6:3; Psalm 83:18 [H 19]; Isa 12:2; Isa 26:4] and in three passages to form transliterated constructs (e.g., Jehovahjireh (Genises 22:14; cc Exyo 17:15; Judges 6:24)). Instead of YHVH YIREH

Siddur Note: Often in the Siddur (and other Jewish religious literature apart from the Scriptures) the Sacred Name is not written

A blurred image of the Hebrew letters YHVH, which is the Sacred Name. The letters are arranged in a way that is difficult to read, likely to illustrate the convention of not writing the name in full in prayer books.

as Y-H-V-H, but rather in an abbreviated manner:

This is a convention in many Hebrew prayerbooks and dikdukim (grammars) to avoid casually writing or reading the Sacred Name.

Note: The sacred Name for God was uttered aloud only 10 times once per year (during Yom Kippur) by the Kohen Gadol. When the people heard the Name, they prostrated themselves in deep reverence

HaShem

The Name (Lev. 24:11,16; Deut. 28:58). This term is often used to refer to the Sacred Name when studying the Scriptures and considering the Sacred Name of YHVH. This is often abbreviated

א-ה-י-ה

simply as I AM THAT I AM

Ehyeh asher Ehyeh

(eh-YEH a-sher eh-YEH) I AM THAT I AM.
(Exodus 3:14; cp. John 8:58).

The LORD God

Adonai Elohim.

The LORD God (Gen. 2:4). This Name shows that the Source and Ground of all being is also the personal God and Creator of the entire universe. being whatsoever. This Name appears 6,800+ times in the Tanakh (rendered in the KJV as the LORD [all caps]).

The Jewish sages note that the four letters of the Name are used to form the phrase no "w" sound in Hebrew.

Hashem: The Name

Since ancient Hebrew did not use any vowel markings, the actual pronunciation of the sacred Name is simply not known. In ancient Temple times, only the Kohen Gadol (high priest) would utter the Name during Yom Kippur [Yoma 39b].

The Jewish tradition is to not pronounce the sacred Name at all, but to substitute the word Adonai ("my Lord") in its place. Thus, when reading Torah, you do not attempt to vocalize the Name, but say Adonai instead.

When not reading Torah or the Siddur, most observant Jews refer to the sacred Name simply as Hashem or "the Name" (Lev. 24:16).

In Hebrew the sacred Name is called Shem HaMeforash, "the ineffable Name."

Attempts to provide an exposition of the Name have come to be known as Shelosh Esreh Middot, or the Thirteen Attributes of God and are usually based on exegesis of Exodus 34:6-7 (mystical speculation about the Name is found in Kabbalistic literature).

אֱלֹהֵי אֱלֹהֵי אֱלֹהֵי

Gnosticism and the Name

There are some people who, despite the educated uncertainty of careful scholarship.

Jewish tradition, pretend to "truly" understand the phonetics of the Sacred Name and offer to "restore it" to those of us willing to be initiated into their secret knowledge. For example, there are some who want to use a "w" for the Vav in the Name, and then permute the nikkudot (vowels) to find a favored reading. This is a dubious practice, however, since even our English idea of "w" is laden with cultural biases, and no practicable equivalence can reasonably be made.

Language, in other words, is about meaning, not about technique.

יְהוָה אֱלֹהִים

Frankly, consider the search for a conjuration of the Sacred Name to be a form of gnostic occultism, symptomatic of people who elevate spiritual technique and "abracadabra" above the shared meaning of the "Presence of God." Moreover, such conjuration is a sign of unbelief, since once you understand the meaning of the Name, the words you use to express it are incidental.

Perhaps this explains why we have such a plethora of various Names and Titles of God given in the Tanakh. Like poets, the sacred writers sought for various words to express the Reality that stands behind the glyphs. But once you get ahold of the Reality (or rather, the Reality gets ahold of you), the words you use to express your awe will always be limited and seem inadequate.

The Morphology of the Name

The earliest forms of the sacred Name appear in proto-Hebrew script (a script that is closely related to ancient Phoenician script).

The image shows the sacred Name of God in proto-Hebrew script, which is a form of the Tetragrammaton YHWH. The characters are arranged in two groups: the first group consists of four characters (Y, H, W, H) and the second group consists of four characters (Y, H, W, H). The script is a stylized, blocky form of the letters, with some characters having small vertical lines or dots below them, possibly indicating vowel positions or specific script variants.

In the Dead Sea Scrolls (DSS), instances of this morphology can be seen in the same running text as the classical Hebrew (ketav Ashurit) script: descriptions.

This special Name of God (YHVH) was moreover combined with "The God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob" to be God's Name forever, "my memorial unto all generations" (see Exodus 3:15-16).

In the traditional Jewish view, YHVH is the Name expressing the mercy and condescension of Almighty God:

"The Holy One, Blessed be He, said to those, You want to know my name? I am called according to my actions. When I judge the creatures I am Elohim, and when I have mercy with My world, I am named YHWH" (Exodus Rabbah 3:6).

יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ

Elohim is the Name given for God as the Creator of the universe (Gen 1:1-2:4a) and implies strength, power, and justice. YHVH, on the other hand, expresses the idea of God's closeness to humans. For example, YHVH "breathed into his (Adam's) nostrils the breath of life" (Genesis 2:7).

The Phonetics of the Name

The Third Commandment (Exodus 20:7) states, "Thou shalt not take the name of the LORD thy God in vain; for the LORD will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain." :

The Sacred Name of YHVH can and may not be altered.
